Five schools, one aim

April 2017 news

- We held our sixth board meeting on the 25th April. This is to report on progress to the parents in our schools.
- The major event was a highly motivating presentation by Sir John Jones which was attended by staff and governors from all the schools in our Trust as well as students from Kingston University who are studying to become teachers.

Latest news

- We have developed strong working relationships between staff within the five schools but are now about to explore how we can develop equally strong and productive relationships between our governing bodies.
- Each governing body has nominated Trust governors. Part of this project will be to see how we might use combined expertise to develop collaborative support to our stakeholders in all the schools.

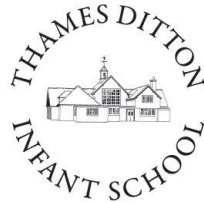

Latest news

- We heard about more excellent progress on the joint development plan for The Trust which was initially reported to the January meeting.
- As well as the Heads of the schools meeting regularly to develop and implement a combined development plan the business managers are also meeting to compare costs and to see how effectiveness could be improved.
- To increase the visibility of the Trust within all five schools each school's web site will have a dedicated link on their site where we will report progress and share key documents.
- Heads of two of our schools and a governor are making a presentation to Surrey Governors' Association on the reasons why we chose the Cooperative Schools' model to help us improve educational achievement across all our schools.
